Giving Back

The Safari Collection is heavily focused on sustainability and giving back, it is at the heart of everything they do. Their ethos is to be low impact, community and conservation orientated to the core and to have a significant positive influence on the people and environment around each lodge.

AWARD WINNING SUSTAINABILITY - Sala's Camp has a silver eco-rating and is built from locally made materials with a light ecological footprint. Their guides and spotters are local Maasai who grew up on the edges of the reserves and are proudly involved in local conservation initiatives. The camp is situated away from the crowds in a private, low-use area of the reserve.

RHINO CONSERVATION - At Sala's Camp each guest contributes to the running of the Masai Mara by paying a $70 park fee and $40 conservation fee both of which are essential funding to the running costs of the reserve and the enduring protection of its incredible wildlife populations. The camp is situated in a rhino sanctuary area and The Safari Collection donates $5 per night for each guest to the Rhino Monitoring Team to assist with fuel, training and their daily activities. They also provide staff and vehicles for their annual censuses.

CHEETAH AND LION PROJECTS - Sala's Camp works in close conjunction with the Mara Cheetah Project and Mara Lion Project, assisting with funding, data collection and as a base for their staff when in the south of the Masai Mara. There are opportunities for interested guests to visit the project or to have dinner with or a lecture from one of their team about their research and conservation activities.

CONSERVATION VEHICLE - Sala's Camp runs a dedicated Conservation Vehicle which assists with monitoring big cat populations in the Masai Mara on a daily basis and our other projects around Kenya at other times.

TEAMTALK - The Safari Collection runs a project called TEAMTalk with the communities on the edge of the Masai Mara focusing on health, female empowerment, FGM reduction and HIV awareness. It is run in the local schools and uses sport to successfully facilitate workshops raising awareness of these important issues.

HEALTH CLINICS - Each year The Safari Collection runs week-long clinics all over in Kenya and recently has run dental clinics in the Masai Mara communities providing free dental care and basic medical services to those in need.
